Co-Editor's Message

Michael Curitti

This year, we were truly blessed with a diverse and innovative group of students, who went above and beyond the call of duty to provide unbiased and unprecedented coverage of the student body. Their collective work shows maturity and passion. I wish to express my gratitude to all of you, as I believe wholeheartedly that this year could have been much more stressful than it was if not for your vast abilities. However, this is not to say that there weren't any snags. At times, certain members of the class felt they deserved a break, when they needed to devote their attention to repairing links and spot colour. They wouldn't be able to slack off for long, because Michael Nassar would burst forth with a force not to be reckoned with. I shouldn't be facetious; that statement is quite untrue. In fact, without his devotion, this would have been a much harder project. His prior yearbook experience gave him a leg up from the start, but he was quick to elucidate the finer points of the process. Our good friendship over the past few years has led to a mutual understanding of our different approaches to problems, and ensured that this collaboration would be an engaging experience. Many thanks for your creative vision and steadfast nature, which made my job as substantive editor more enjoyable. It was a pleasure to produce this memorable book in conjunction with you.

Kristen Menecola, your artistic flair and insights serve you well. You worked diligently to procure proper templates and pantone colours—a painstaking process, to be sure. Your contributions furnished the yearbook with a seamless and professional design.

Heather Stainback, your knowledge of Photoshop resulted in a jaw-dropping set of dividers, which exceeded all expectations. Your proficient photography skills imbued the yearbook with glorious pictures of a calibre that has not been seen in past yearbooks.

I must not forget to thank Shawna King. Your friendly demeanour and dedication to your occupation aided us in creating the yearbook, but also tapped our true potential.

And finally, I would like to express my deepest thanks to the inimitable Ms. L. Browne. Before I begin praising you, I would like to first thank you for appointing me as one of the co-editors. The opportunity you granted me was an immensely rewarding experience, and has provided me with many memories that I will cherish for a lifetime. In my humble opinion, you have served as a mentor to both myself and Michael Nassar, teaching us to further improve our writing styles, and sharing anecdotes from your past experiences which helped us to develop even stronger critical thinking skills. In the past year, we witnessed many hilarious moments together, and were able to laugh even as deadlines loomed ominously. Your teaching methods are divinely unique, and students can learn so much by paying close attention to your words of wisdom. It has been a privilege and an honour to create this book under your caring guidance.

Compiling the numerous pages developed by various students to form one book representing the entire student populace is a daunting task for any editors to undertake. That being said, I strongly feel that this year's yearbook is superior to any of the previous ones produced during my time at this school. Undoubtedly, this is my legacy to PCSS, and I hope that this book provides you all with many memories for years to come.

Michael Nassar

The process of creating a yearbook has been both a superb learning experience and a colossal headache.

Coming into this project, I understood that several difficulties would arise; but never, could I have predicted the extent to which our problem-solving skills were tested. From construction in room 225 to my ever-increasing edginess around deadlines, this project has been more a journey of neurotic proportions than a simple ISU for a course.

Looking back on the year, I have realized that the challenges have often extended my problem-solving skills and solidified my determination. This yearbook has transformed me in ways I never thought possible. It has taught me to deal effectively with my staff, motivate them, and provide them with guidelines. Leadership is an important position that must not be abused or neglected; I hope that I have been successful in upholding that value. Gandhi said it best: "I suppose leadership at one time meant muscles; but today it means getting along with people."

In the next few pages, you will be introduced to the theme of this yearbook: Port Credit Secondary School as a Cultural Mosaic. The cover, designed by Tony Panesar and Mark Lavrisa, shows a seamless integration of our school with the community. Port Credit is written on the front in graffiti style, which all students can relate to. On the reverse, two students are spray-painting a warrior—a grassroots symbol of our School Community. Community is used as an underlying theme because of its close relationship with culture and great integration into the Mosaic of school life.

This yearbook could not have been completed without the enormous contribution of many people, mainly the IDC 4U0 class. Thank you! You have made my job as editor much easier; your achievement will last a lifetime. In the past, yearbook was run completely as an extra-curricular activity; however, thanks to Ms. J. Courtin and Ms. L. Browne, we are able to complete it as a class as well as an extra-curricular.

Sincere thanks to Ms. L. Browne, a true mentor, for weathering all our set-backs. It has been a pleasure to work in tandem with you on this project. You have incorporated the Yearbook as an ISU into the course while still maintaining high intellectual rigor. The ease at which you are able to relate real-world issues to course content is truly an inspiration. I appreciate the time you have contributed to this course and to the yearbook. I am sure I speak on behalf of the class when I say your efforts are truly appreciated.

Thank you, Shawna King, for being there all those times when no one else had the answers. I value your contribution of time and generosity towards our yearbook.

Kristen Menecola, your gift of artistry and creativeness to the yearbook has been thoroughly appreciated. The book would not have looked as good as it does without your constant endeavour for perfection.

Thank you, Heather Stainback, for effortlessly creating the masterpieces we call our dividers. They are truly a work of art and a manifestation of your awesome abilities.

Michael Curitti, a great friend (albeit sometimes a polar opposite): it has been a pleasure to work with you on this project. You have truly outperformed, sometimes cavalierly, all my expectations as an incoming co-editor. I appreciate your leadership. Our common goal was to make this yearbook stand out against the previous, and for your perseverance, I thank you.

Capturing one year of high school life in 128 pages, a high school yearbook is like no other. To the graduates: this book maintains a heavy focus on you between grad comments, semi-formal, grad breakfast, and formal. Take this memento with you wherever you may go as it is probably one of the most important books on your shelf.

I hope many students choose to get involved in extra-curricular activities and, subsequently, get involved in the course in grade twelve. It is true that you grade nine, ten, and eleven students, are the future of Port Credit and yearbook. Get involved and remember one thing: "A memory is a photograph taken by the heart to make a special moment last forever."

n. A consolidation of smaller elements unified to assemble a larger picture.

At first glance, this dictionary definition of the word mosaic may seem slightly odd; but if one observes closely, it will become apparent that the definition can be applied not just to inanimate objects, but to human beings as well. Each one of us is an individual, a unique work of art and when we combine our various talents and perspectives, we are all taking our place in a much grander picture.

When selecting a theme for this year's book, the class wanted it to be striking, of course, but also endeavoured to come up with a grander theme, one that would serve as a true summation of the character of the student body. The mosaic theme turned out to be perfect. Within PCSS, there are myriad ethnicities, religions, and personalities. Every student in the school exudes different talents and exhibits unique traits. These traits are dicrete pieces of the large mosaic that is the student body of PCSS.

What should also be recognized (and particularly familiar to the Grade 12 students) is that we all have the capacity to discover and subsequently hone our respective educated imaginations. What better way to accomplish this than by observing the cultural and social mosaic evident within our school?

WOW! The four years that I've spent at Port Credit have gone by so fast. I can still remember my first day with the butterflies in my stomach and the curiosity of what high school life would be like. I steered clear of the unfamiliar and was nervous to take part in any school activities. It wasn't until the end of Grade 9 that I took a risk and joined Port Credit's Rugby team (what a way to start). After having a taste of what it was like to be a part of Port Credit, I realized that I was missing out on the full high school experience. For the next three years I made sure to join as much as I could. Never in my wildest dreams would I have thought I would be the Student Council President of my school, but it never would have happened if I didn't test the waters of all my opportunities. Being a member of a council and playing for a team allowed me to meet all sorts of interesting people who I now call my friends. Nothing has been a greater experience than running a council with my peers. My Vice President: Jacky Elfiki, SAC execs: Kate Dunn, Jennifer Nguyen, K.C. Chawla, Kelly Wallace, Robyn Levy, Will Norman and all general members, have shown me that great team work can go a long way. I am honored to have worked with a very creative group who has spent countless hours working on school events. Thanks for always having my back! To all the students of Port Credit, I hope you had a great year and I wish you success and happiness in the future. Just remember life is like a baseball diamond and we are all just rounding second base, wanting to steal third. Once we pass third and aim for home, we will then have completed all the stepping stones and reached our goals of having a happy and fulfilled life. Cheers.

I often think of Port Credit as an active, burgeoning little town. Throughout the year, the action never stops. The classrooms and halls are filled with youthful energy, and the extra-curricular life of the school keeps keen students here after hours, happily developing their skills in many areas. In September we are recharged once more as our enthusiastic grade 9's arrive, while at the other end of the spectrum each year a new senior group takes on the responsibility of leadership. In November, our graduates return to reminisce and celebrate with commencement, and the cycle continues. We are in fact a learning community, and a challenging one. Our 1000 students represent 44 countries. Our history and tradition date back to 1919. We are the "Old Port Credit" and the "New Canada".

Ms. Duzzie-Browne and her journalism class work hard throughout the year to produce the Port Credit yearbook full of memories for staff and students. It is a challenging task, one of pressures and of deadlines. We have a tight team; however, they learn a great deal in the process. Well done, and thank you to all for your fine efforts!

In September 2005, we will open the SciTech program here at Port Credit, creating another community of learners to blend into the already vibrant mix. These students are passionate about Science and Technology. Over 200 of them applied to the program, and only 100 will be accepted. They will bring their enthusiasm and creativity to our community. The oldest secondary school in Peel will produce a brand-new, cutting-edge regional program for Science and Technology, launching an exciting new phase in our school life.

Canada is a unique country in its blend of cultures, races and religions. As a democratic country, we seek to embrace all cultures, religions, and races as equal human beings with equal rights. Some days we do that better than others. We have distinct cultural and religious groups within our community. We have students whose hearts are still with their mother country, and who form tight groups to help them sustain the memories and the identity that they associate with that country. We have groups that bring former feuding from "back home" to Port Credit hallways. In the office, we three administrators mediate and help students work through their issues in order to better understand one another.

Through the power of technology, the world continues to shrink. As a result, we become closer to people from around the globe as we witness their suffering far away from us, yet intimately reflected in our homes on our television screens. The tragic disaster of the tsunami over the holidays in December and the horrific aftermath shocked people all over the world, triggering a flood of donations. We have, in our Port Credit community, students who feel the pain of this event more keenly, because they were born in that part of the world, or their parents came from one of the countries hit by the tsunami. Our school community is a microcosm of the world community. We need to understand each other better, appreciate our differences and support one another whenever we can.

I am honoured to be the principal of Port Credit Secondary School. I could not possibly do the job without the talented team-work of my vice principals, Janet Williams and Cathy Semler, and without the support and dedication of my excellent staff. The wonderful young people at Port Credit make our job a joy, most of the time! Thank you to all, for making Port Credit such a special place. May your memories of your years here stay with you always.

Remembrance Day
November 11, 2004

Each year on November 11, every person in North America takes a moment to reflect on the sacrifices of those who fought or perished in various wars of the past century. Traditionally, at 11:00 am, everyone participates in a minute or two of silence. The significance of 11:00 am is that at this moment, on November 11 of 1918, the armistice was signed to end the First World War.

Here at Port Credit SS, two assemblies are held each Remembrance Day (or Veteran's Day, as it is called in the United States), one for the Junior grades and one for the Seniors. A guest speaker is brought in each year to enlighten students, usually someone who was directly involved in military combat or a civilian who lived through a war.

This year, the speaker was Mr. Ron Searle, one of Mississauga's former mayors, who fought in World War II in England. A decorated veteran, Mr. Searle spoke to students about his overseas combat experiences, and also of his relationships with other people, including a touching story of meeting his future wife. Mr. Searle believes that one should not just focus on relaying stories about the fighting, but more importantly, the human element. He managed to do just that, resulting in a story of great poignancy, one that touched every student.

Ron Searle, former mayor of Mississauga, speaks to students of his wartime experiences in a heartfelt story.

International Music Day

For the past four years, the Music Department has planned for the school to celebrate International Music Day, which is October 1st each year. In the days leading up to October 1st, music students are asked to go to friends and family for pledges to contribute to a world cause. In 2001, the money raised went to the September 11th relief fund. In 2002, a Peel Women's Shelter. Last year, to the victims of the Kelowna, British Columbia forest fires. This year, the pledge money has been sent to Haiti and Grenada, to help the victims of the hurricanes that destroyed much of the region.

In addition to pledges, music students are asked to choose a time slot in which they will perform music in the halls. The objective is to have every music student perform at some point in the day, at any location in the school, so that there is music heard all over the school for the entire duration of the day.

Assemblies are held the morning of October 1 to demonstrate to students the importance of music in the world and to showcase the music performed by various cultures.

Establishing A Dress Code

In any secondary school across North America, one of the most defining characteristics of teenagers, or rather, what makes them stand out from their friends and peers, is their daily attire. A student's choice of clothing can be utilized to make a statement about identity, to shy away from accepted norms, or to defy authority. Often, a student will have made the decision to adopt a certain attire, but will immediately convert to another style in order to fit in with a certain group. All of this is entirely acceptable; however, there is still a line that must not be crossed in a school setting. To be sure, certain clothing is potentially hazardous in a learning environment. It is understandable that teenagers feel anger when they are dressed down by the administration or their teachers; but they should also acknowledge that, quite simply, protocol is being followed. In other words, teachers' true feelings regarding attire are irrelevant, but the Peel Board's regulations must be observed.

From Dusk Until Dawn

All Hallows' Eve began with the start of yet another boring school day...or so we all thought. At the start of the morning, students poured into school with amazing, original, and sometimes horrifying costumes. They chose to don these new outfits to show their Halloween spirit and, subsequently, escape from reality by masquerading as their favourite characters or used it to show different sides of themselves.

After dark, when the night had begun, Hallows' Eve was in full swing. Dressed up and ready to have fun, students partied the night away. With drinks and food aplenty, students gorged themselves and danced the night away! Mayhem, devilry, and hoopla abounded! The students, in the extravagant costumes of their alter-egos, shook their moonlit bodies to the music of the night.

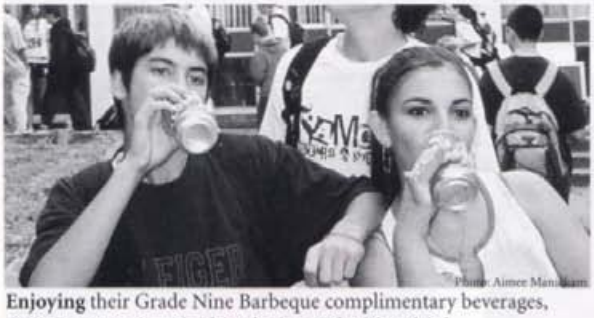
Grade Nine Barbeque

We can all remember back to grade 9, how scared we felt looking around what used to be the large, confusing halls of Port Credit. One of the first events that we ever went to was the grade 9 BBQ. Hosted by SAC every year, it remains the traditional welcoming of students to Port Credit. It makes the grade nines feel a bit more relaxed about going to a new school with hundreds of people they don't know. The food is actually decent. Hamburgers, hot dogs, and drinks are all served while the smells of barbecuing food waft through the halls of the school. Many new friends are made that day and as grade nines are introduced to the members of SAC and various teachers around our school. Administration also make their rounds, and students are able to see the people who run our school (and unlike elementary school, it takes three administrators to run Port Credit!). After the lunch bell rings and the BBQ is over, new memories have been successfully made, and it is only the beginning of more to come!



Enjoying their Grade Nine Barbeque complimentary beverages, Peter Benvenuto and a friend take a refreshing drink.

Grade Nine Drama

Here at Port Credit, we have many drama classes. In Grade Nine, you have the option to take drama, music, or art. Students that pick drama however, are in for a surprise. Different from any drama class that they have taken before, drama at Port Credit takes on a very traditional flair. Students meet in small groups and put together skits to present to their peers and teachers. They are also able to try out for the school plays that we do here at Port Credit. Students get to relax in an environment where they can interact with their peers. In drama you can sometimes catch a glimpse of vulnerable emotions, and raw talent. Grade Nine drama is an essential part of the high school experience!

Port Credit's Eid Party

After Ramadan, Muslim students showed their respect and attended the Eid party. Eid is a three-day holiday of joy. Over 60 students came, from grades Nine to Twelve - an amazing turnout.

Most importantly, a special thanks goes to Ms. J. Williams, Mr. J.F. Michaud, and Mr. V. Shaikh. They had everything under control. Arabic and Indian music kept the party alive. When it was time to take a break, all the students reported to the caf for dinner. Thanks to Mr. Shaikh and Bahroze Khan, the food was delicious.

What was fascinating is that not only Muslims attended the party. Christians also were a part of it. No matter what the religion is, we all share the same faith and rituals.

Bahroze Khan had been orgnizing this party for months. Mr. V. Shaikh, on the other hand, had to do the most work. He had to make sure that every student had a ticket, and the school stayed clean; especially the cafeteria. But the thanks goes to Ms. J. Williams and Mr. J.F. Michaud, who spent their time helping out and watching for any trespassers.

The students did a marvelous job. They obeyed the rules and kept the school spotless. After the party was over, some people including Mr. V. Shaikh, Mr. J.F. Michaud and Ms. J. Williams, stayed to help out and make sure that everything was in order and all the students had exited the building.

After a long day, the party was worthwhile; everything went according to plan. Mr. V. Shaikh called it, "The best Eid party at our school".

Decorating her friends' hands with henna, Fatima Anees shows us her Eid Day attire and customary dress.

Winter?

What Winter?

Where did all the snowflakes go? We have had days of heavy snow, then rain, then freezing rain, then a day of +18... and that's all in one week! We have had a tossed salad of weather this winter.

To some people, the lack of snow is a good thing; but ask someone else and he or she might hate it and wish for the snow to stay around.

For those doomed to shovel the driveway endlessly , this is the greatest winter ever. But for those who want to hit our Ontario "slopes" this winter, it's a real disappointment.

The only thing for everyone to do is cozy up to their fires and enjoy the snow, or the sun, the rain, brutal cold, or maybe the spring-like heat. Whatever it is, let's enjoy our winter!

Huddling inside the school, students try to stay out of winter's fickle bite.

Sports At Port Credit?

Here at Port Credit, we take sports extremely seriously, combined with a great amount of enthusiasm and passion to win.

Port Credit continuosly rises to the top of all the sports standings as our teams exude the heart, perseverance, and school pride needed to win the championships in all sports.

Port Credit has a unique tradition that on "game day" a player of the team usually wears their team jersey, a Port Credit shirt, or a suit.

Port Credit and its Warriors have a strong tradition of being recognized as a top school of sports and will definitely continue the trend by the hard work by all the teachers and students who make sports teams at our school possible.

Youth Pricing at the movies

If you are fourteen years old and above, you are forced to pay for an adult ticket at the cinema. With an adult ticket comes an adult price upwards of $12. Very few cinemas have youth tickets, except for AMC.

Why do we have to pay for adult tickets which are too high priced in the first place, and then sometimes not even get into adult movies that are rated 18A?

So...what can we do? Movies are a multi-billion dollar business; and as fewer and fewer people go to the movies, the ticket prices get higher and higher. The answer is, realistically, nothing. We're just going to have to bear with it. Feel free to write angry letters to Cineplex Odeon or Famous Players, but you can spare AMC, 'cause they've got our backs.

Javed Qadree feels that movies are a rip off! He refuses to go to one.

Multicultural Perspectives

Here at Port Credit, we pride our school in being a multicultural and diverse place to be. We celebrate many different holidays, customs, and ceremonies during our school year. Students from every religion, culture, and nationality can come together in the friendly halls of Port Credit and feel comfortable knowing that they will be accepted. Port Credit Secondary School is located in a region of Mississauga that is home to people from all over the world. They come here because Mississauga is a positive atmosphere to establish firm roots, to raise a family and a great place to send children to further their education. We love having these folks at Port Credit, and hope there will be more to come!

Free Speech

Part of an educated imagination?

Free speech is easily abused by ignorance. "Education," says Panteha Ghahremanpour, "will be the only way we can prevent discriminatory acts, while ensuring the public rights of free speech." Similarly, university professor Jeff Pfeiffer believes that 75% of the time, racism results from lack of experience and personal knowledge. When people are unaware of the real world around them, they tend to feel unsafe in a world of different people whom they do not understand.

By exposing ourselves to diversity, we will grow to realize our underlying similarities. When we are educated about the world around us, we become more tolerant and accepting.

University: Are You Ready?

Many students are planning rewarding careers beginning in university. Doctors, lawyers, and every white-collar profession you can think of. But are students ready for the workplace? Students take U-level courses, keeping their marks up so that they can get into the university of their dreams.

Students are being pushed by teachers and parents with the ideas that they should be nothing less than a university graduate, with an amazing job and a high class lifestyle. This idea, in turn, has left the students that aren't cut out for university in the dust.

The fact is that students, parents, and teachers have "tunnel vision"; they perceive university only as being truly successful. Unfortunately, students that have college, apprenticeship, or work ambitions have become secondary considerations of the school. The SciTech programme may break this perception.

SPECIAL

Team Ten

This group of students is truly special because of their desire to succeed, and to make a difference in society. They are an integral part of the Port Credit community and share their happiness and friendliness with us.

These students are remembered by all because of their hard work. And we should not forget them, because they are a paradigm of effort for all of us. They are involved in many activites at Port Credit: cooking, cleaning, collecting attendance, and recycling. They also contribute outside of the school, to give them the opportunity to interact with local community operations. With this special program, they gain confidence that will help them later in life.

Every year, new kids enter the program, but at the end of the four years, it is not only our support that helps them succeed, but also their enthusiasm for learning and their dedication to each other.

Regional Program

chamber strings

Port Credit is very forunate to exclusively carry the Peel Regional Strings Program. It consists of students who are serious about playing chamber instruments, and wish to gain experience playing in a group.

However, this course is not open to anyone. Students that wish to enroll must go through a playing exam first, which requires three-octave scales, and two pieces.

However, the course itself is not all performing and practising. There's a great deal of history and theory to learn. It's difficult to play a piece properly if you don't understand where it came from, and how to express it.

Students study various composers and musical periods throughout the centuries. They are required to write tests, complete assignments, and perform a final exam piece at the end of the year.

Some years, students have been lucky enough to travel to Vienna, Austria. There the class has the opportunity to visit historical musical sites, watch operas and orchestral performances, and study with Austrian musicians.

Chamber strings can often be seen outside the school, playing at The Living Arts center and Peel Board receptions. We hope that the growing popularity of our Chamber Strings will attract new students into the program.

Practice makes perfect. A common sight in Room 125, the Chamber Strings woodshedding some of their repertoire. Even though they perform alot at school, each student knows it's important to also play at home.

Imagine having the opportunity to legitimately attend school every second day without any repercussions. Port Credit's Co-op program, which is an option for all students, offers a way to earn four credits while experiencing the world of work and escaping the school setting.

Co-op is comprised of the "in-school" and "out of school job site" components, where they can earn up to four credits from September to June by attending the Co-op program every other day all school year. On the non-coop day, students simply come to school and can take up to four other regular classes. This would therefore earn the required eight credits a year.

Some students choose to take Co-op in grade eleven, others in grade twelve, and some even decide to come back for a fifth year to take courses they were unable to get in previous years and to gain job and life experience. Co-op is sometimes necessary to attain certain careers. Some areas, such as Early Childhood Education, require students to have experience in order to gain entry to post-secondary programs and after the completion of a year in Co-op, the individual has at least 400 hours of experience in a particular field.

The Co-op teachers, Mrs. Kirkconnell and Mrs. Sorensen try their best to accommodate the students' wishes and spend many weeks searching for the right employer and working environment to match each individual student. "Almost any type of work is a possibility", stated Mrs. Kirkconnell in an interview that was conducted with the hard-working teachers. Some examples of this year's placements are: auto mechanics and auto body repair, law offices, hairdressers, engineering firms, video editing and production, various restaurants for chef training, day care centers and nursery schools, elementary schools, fitness facility management, spas, real estate offices, graphic arts, radio stations and countless other areas that one may wish to explore. "Mrs. Kirkonnell and I assist the students and help narrow down their career possibilities and then work individually with the students who honestly do not know what they would like to explore", remarked Mrs. Sorensen.

Eric Fast, a grade twelve student, who has had a fascination with mechanics since the tender age of six was effortlessly matched to his placement. One day he hopes to attain a future in the world of auto mechanics, and the Co-op experience has granted him hands-on experience which is a vital attribute in the industry. This most likely will set him apart in a job interview as he will have a minimum of 400 hours of previous experience. "I never was one to jump at the chance to go to school, which is why Co-op was such a wise decision for me, as it is incredibly different than the school environment. I actually enjoy getting up and going to my placement and doing something that I love, rather than doing tasks and assignments in school about things which do not interest me. It has in a way, assured me of what I want to do with my life and I am thankful for that."

Mrs. Kirkconnell also mentioned that students who are placed in a trade, such as Eric Fast, have the possibility of registering as an apprentice, while still in high school through the Ontario Youth Apprenticeship program. This gives the students a head start on the skills they will need in order to pursue an apprenticeship. The students however, must be at least 16 years of age and have at least 16 credits in order to enroll in this program.

Co-op gives an opportunity to students who would like to attend college or university, hands on experience, as well as give indication as to whether or not the particular profession is correctly suited for the individual. It also grants the option to get a high-school diploma without actually going to school, which for many people is a blessing. With the interviews that were conducted and the opinions and remarks stated by the Co-op students, as well as the personable, knowledgeable, teachers; coop could be for anyone and should seriously be considered when selecting courses for next year.

The 2AL and 4AL trips aren't just about portages and building quinzees, it's also about creating friendships and memories to last a lifetime. To be a part of one of these classes, you have to go through an extensive process. This includes: passing a swim test, good grades and teacher recommendations. Once accepted into the course, be prepared for eight preparatory days, which start at 7 a.m. which see students waking up quite early in the morning for the first camping trip. The first camping trip for the 2AL class is at Camp Medeba, where the students put their preparation to the test. The 4AL class heads off to Algonquin Park for a 6-day stay in the wilderness. After the students are back from their trips, the next few months of their classes are filled with different activities. These activities include: curling, swimming, triathlon and rock climbing. When the cold weather and snow drops by, the students of both classes are off on their winter trip. The 2AL class heads to Camp Candalore where they participate in various winter activities. These include: cross-country skiing, matressing, repelling, polar dips, broom ball and Inuit blanket toss. The 4AL class takes a trip to Camp Wanakita where they had to build a quinzee, which is also known as a snow hut, in order to stay warm while they slept the first night. The 4AL students also experienced the winter activities that the 2AL class did. Although the students in these classes experience similar activities, they each take away something different from this course that is truly unique for each of them.

This year's peer mentoring class is a very strong, enthusiastic group of hard-working students. We talked with Jacky Elfiki about her peer mentoring experience with Ms. Proctor's grade 9 girls phys. Ed. class. We asked her about her relationships with the girls in her class. She said, "Well, whenever I see them in the hall I'm like 'what up' and they're like 'what up'. This answer pretty well sums up the relationship that all of the peer mentors have built with their students. It is also important for them to build a strong relationship with the teachers that they help out.

These peer mentors have been helping out in the following teachers' classrooms: Elizabeth Bauer-Mr. Pearson; Michael Bozzo- Mr. Marriott; Ashley Britton-Mr. Marriott; Ashley Cadeau-Ms. Postma; Marion Cherian-Mr. Shaikh; Grace Coyle-Mr. Kolenko; Fatme Dahcheh-Ms. Nagpal; Jacky Elfiki-Ms. Proctor; Irfaan Emamdee-Mr.Habs; Adnan Grbesic-Ms. Connor; Michael Griffin-Mr. Mason; Stephanie Howell-Mrs. Boyle; Munaza Karimi- Ms. Connor; Emma Kozik-Mrs. Davis; Krista Lamovsek-Mr. Calimente; Medina Makhmudov-Mrs. Reilly; Usman Mazahir-Mr. Wong; Alessandra Miceli-Mrs. Gung; Anthoney Miceli-Mr. Dyce; Krista Naumovski-Mrs. Doria; Stephanie Smith-Mrs. Okememe; Vikram Somasundaram- Mr. Nesbitt; Cleone Ye-Mr. George; and Kate Zado-Mrs. Boyle

Journalism

Those Who Put Together YOUR Yearbook

When one signs up to take the Journalism course for their last year of high school they may not know quite what they are getting in to. When this author signed up for the class it was the expectation that the course was dedicated solely to the production of this very yearbook. It was surprising to learn in the first weeks of taking it that there was much more going on than the yearbook.

The primary thing that surprised me was the vast array of students that had chosen the course with a wide range of talents and skills each ready to offer something individual to the classroom and the yearbook. And, indeed, the course has a great deal to offer students interested in many different things. Writing style development, use of advanced publishing software, knowledge of journalistic design and photography are just a few of the things that one can learn or enhance in the Journalism course.

But it's not always easy. As everyone who has taken the class knows. "I wasn't prepared for the drama that that class actually has" reported Alexandra Bader a student in the class. There are late nights and stressful periods while trying to meet a deadline. Not to mention the extensive gossip that occours between the two editors and there constant cursing in Italian. But the leadership of the teacher Ms. Browne and the editors-in-chiefs Michel Curitti and Michael Nassar helped guide us through the year. With their expertise and superior organizational skills every goal was met successfully.

So this most respectful class of 28 has done it, and done it well. And they have this yearbook to show for it, a timeless piece of their last year at Port Credit. It takes a certain kind of person to be in the journalism class, "a sophisticated and thoughtful person who can be both a team player and an independent worker to a high degree of effectiveness" stated Mike Curitti as the editor describing the students of the class. And to those students who took control of their last year of high school and their yearbook, this author would like to say it has been an honor working with you and the best of luck to you all.

Smile! Even through the frustration of yearbook, Jane Kennedy still manages to churn out a smile.

Ms. Browne experiments with the new InDesign softare, in a attempt to familiarize herself with it.

Michael Curitti and Ricky Church working hard or watching Star Wars?

Feelin' Great. Alexandra Bader feels great after having completely finished one of her pages.

Break. Nicole Angelow takes a short 15 min. break to have read up on some journasalitc elements.

Technology

Comm Tech

Students lugging video cameras in the hallways is a common sight at Port Credit. It's usually our Communications Technology class, looking for interviewees or recording a music video. However, this course doesn't involve only film. The grade nine introductory course, Intergrated Technology, where students learn to build their own pin-hole cameras. Students study the composition of photographs, and techniques on effective photo taking. The course also teaches students how to use Corel Draw, various audio-recording programs, and other forms of media. Students enjoy the course, and know that it will prepare them for careers in live, recorded, electronic, and graphic communications.

Too many TVs! Students preparing to edit videos recordings for an assignment.

Media Arts

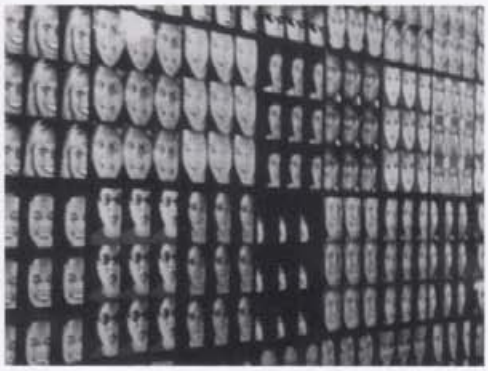
non-traditional art

At PCSS, we offer a unique program within the visual arts department which allows students to use their artistic talents in combination with new technology. Working in the recently-renovated computer labs, students gain skills in Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator while studying advertising and graphic design, 20th century and contemporary art, photography, and illustration techniques.

The introductorary course is popular, and students eagerly learn the basics of graphic design, photography, and Adobe Photoshop through a variety of projects including pop art, poster design, and Portaiture.

In Grade Eleven, students build on their skills with Photoshop, students work on fine art and advertising projects while studying Typography and Contemporary art forms.

Finally, the grade twelve course prepares students for post-secondary study in the art and design fields. They work on a variety of pieces, focusing on conceptual art, and major movements in modern art. At the end of the year, graduating students create a body of work that is showcased in the year-end artshow.



Student Artwork. Several works that the Non-Traditional Media course has created.

Four years of pc went by so fast. It's hard to beleive but the time has finally come. 4 yrs full of memories has past and the worry of the university begins. I met kids that I would never forget and their memories will last my life time. Wut up to all my hommies and thanks to DK/FW/MD/BM/SP and lots more. We went through alot in these 4 yrs, all the fun time, chillin, ladies and more that exceeds my limit of this comment. The times with danko was unforgettable lmao and thanks man. A new chapter in my life is starting ...University. All I hope it turns out as good as the years in Port Credit. Those yrs Rocked.

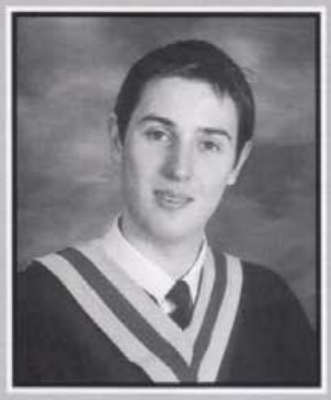
"And I'll hold on through the tears and laughter. But will it be beautiful, or just a beautiful disaster..." I can't even begin to tell you all how fast this has gone. Even with its ups and downs, if I could do it all over again, I would. Thanking all of my friends seems cliché, but it's true. You guys made me realize that maybe I wasn't so scared after all. So we are on our own now eh PC? Go out, do everything that you have ever wanted to do, and "Give fate a fighting chance. Because this life isn't dress rehearsal." Cheers! We did it!

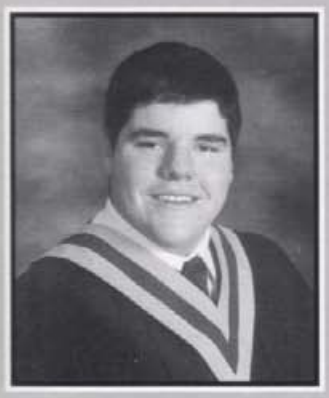
Rabia Baj



It's been a long journey with many bumps along the road. Some of you I've known since preschool, but it's time for us to part ways. Clubs and travelogues (3rd floor hallway at night!) were fun, and each year of English has been eventful (Who knew I had so much in common with H. Caulfield?). A very special thanks to my dedicated teachers for all of their help and guidance. These past two years have been especially challenging. I wish you all luck in your future endeavours.

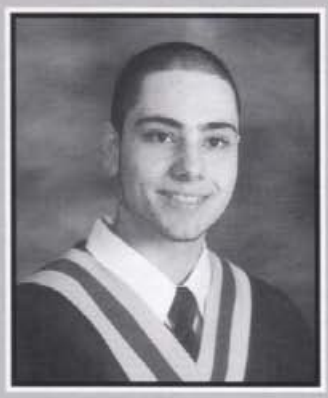
Jessie Barrow

Can you believe how long it took me to think of what to write here? I suppose not. Well anyway, here it goes: the past 4yrs have gone by so fast! I can't believe its actually over, I DON'T WANNA GO! To my friends: I love you guys, I'll never forget the parties and the random stuff we've done. There have been great times and hard times but in the end, I wouldn't trade any of it for the world. Always remember: "All endings are beginnings, we just don't know it at the time." And with that, I bid you adieu PC.



Christopher Barta

Well what a year! I'm glad I came home. I love you all and wish you all the very best. Writing this makes me think, good god is that it? But it isn't its only the start of an amassing journey called life, (as he trips, falls down and plants his face on the ground leaving a trail of destruction) K.O.! All my friends and family thank you. "Golly Biff that haircut really agrees with you." King Ukraine, Cheryl, Ricky, Brent, Eric, Cam, Roger and Martyn we'll all meet up again for a good old Mammoth Hunt.
So long, and keep that warrior spirit.



Tahsin Bayram

Damn, 4 years went by fast. Lets start off by giving a shout out to the crew, and a special shout out to AH DD MA BW KC BC ST TP JS SW SC. There were some good times/memories, B-rads & KC's house, Quebec, jams, making fun of K.C, Dubay and the cougar "if you don't remember it never happened" right buddy. But best of all, was the time I spent with Alyssa over the past 2 years, LUV U babe. Time at PC has been fun, but its time to move on to bigger and better things and for those who I won't be seeing again, good luck in the future. PC WHAT!

PC has been a wonderful place and I'll always treasure these memories. I would like to thank my teachers for their continued support and trust in me. I made some very good friends here. Thnx guys for ur cooperation and for all those moments we shared in the cafeteria, in the classroom, the clubs (Chemistry parties, chess duels, and math and physics probs....LOL ☺!) and all that basketball and soccer that we played. Good luck to u all !!

Karanjot Chawla

First thank you to my parents who have done everything for me to get this far & for always being there. It's been 3 crazy years at PC for me. QC, Jams, Clubbing, Semi, Poker, Niagara Falls, EWC, My House & so many other great times. PC WHAT! "Friendship is not something you learn in school. For me, the past four years have been tumultuous yet rewarding, and have left many indelible imprints in my mind. As we all cast off from PCSS and head in our own separate directions, there's no telling where each of us might end up. When we return for school reunions years down the road, there will certainly be many surprises and stories to be told. I would like all of the graduates to remember that your success and contentedness will not arise from material goods or monetary acquisitions, for as Richard Wagner said: "Joy is not in things; it is in us."

Christopher Dennis

Words cannot describe the way i feel right now but here it goes, 4 years have passed and still I have nothing to say: Well my time is finally up THANK GOODNESS! I never thought this day would come but here it is. I would like to thank my friends u know who u r! We finally made it people W00T! If i don't c u before i will c u in Valhalla!

The last 4 years have been a blur, but they've been nothing but good times all the way.
"...All I'm saying is that I want to look back and say that I did it the best I could while I was stuck in this place. Had as much fun as I could while I was stuck in this place..." Primo parties, all thanks to the PC crew of '05. Dape it to the years, they were money and I wouldn't change a damn thing. Wish the times didn't have to end and I could keep givin 'er. But just remember, "No Camel route is long with good company" Cheers PC, crack a brew for all the memories.

"I don't know why we're here, but we might as well enjoy ourselves" On that note, these last four years have been a roller coaster ride that I've never have gotten through without the support of my friends, family, and teachers. Between those football games that took four years for the school to find out about, to x-country, track, those card games, and numerous other memories that won't fit in 550 characters, PC has become a part of me I'll never forget. "Life may not be the party we've hoped for, but while we're here we might as well dance"

Strangers are exciting; their mysteries never cease. But there's nothing like looking at your own history in faces of your friends. As I walk away I realize I may not have gone where I intended to go but I think I've ended up where I intended to be. Thanks to my parents to support! Thanks to all my friends for times we've shared! Thanks to all of my teachers for their valuable lessons, help & guidance.

A thousand mile journey begins with a single step & ends with a new beginning. As this 4-year journey of mine comes to an end, I bid you adieu PC!

This isn't an Oscar speech, but I would like to thank God, my parents and all the people who supported me through these years. I will always remember the great times I shared with my friends, shout out to S.P., B.M., M.A., B.D. and Mr. Calimente I wish everyone the best and want to motivate them with these few words…you can teach a horse to fish, but you can't lead him to water…no wait I meant to say, in life you can't expect to hit the jackpot if you don't put a few nickels in the machine. P.C. WHAT.

In grade 9, graduation seemed so far away but now it's here & I feel like I've just begun to find myself. To all my friends, thanks for leaving a lasting impression on my life, embrace the future & have no regrets. To my parents & bro thank u for always being there & guiding me to success. The memories of B-Ball especially OFSAA; Soccer & 4AL I'll always remember. Good luck to everyone in the future & remember that the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle, it's not important to have dominated but to have fought well!

PCSS Grads of 2005, I wish you all the best in the future. Take these past four years will you as a memory of the best times of your life—this is probably where you made your best friends and life-long acquaintances. I appreciate all those who helped me along the way. Between the stresses with yearbook, parties, part-time work at Tommy, chillin', and whatever else we did and other memories we made—It was all worth it! Mr.George & Ms.Browne—thanks for enhancing my learning. I'm sure all of you will encounter challenges but that's what, "makes life interesting; overcoming them is what makes life meaningful" -J.J. What's up everybody? What a time it has been, it just flew bye. I want to shout out to all the P.C boys and ladies, you know who. I want to thank my parents for all of their support and encouragement over the years. My teachers, Mr.P and the people who have helped me through my high school education, Mrs.P thanks again. To my sinoges, Brad and Cav, nothing will ever bring us down. We always did and always will have each others back. To the P.C hockey team, "P.C WHAT", always #1, good times. My advice to everyone is to live every day like it's your last and also have a purpose for living not a problem with life. Take it easy every one.

There is a lot that should be said to a generation who doesn't want to listen.

A sincere thank you to all my teachers and friends past, present and future: Being in my life has influenced me in some way or another. Thanks for making me who I am.

Note to self: You have your whole life in front of you. Don't just stand there, make something of it.

Above all, be true to your self, that's all that matters.

Smile! Paul Latcher stops and smiles.

Mark Gurden-Zsiga and Jess Murray-Gow make time in their busy schedules to stop and smile for the yearbook cameras; however, Mark doesn't seem too interested.

On a spare, in the cafeteria, Kayla Shepherd, Hema Mistry and Matt Clarke take some time to catch up.

Student Life

Teachers

Staff Sector

The dedicated teaching staff of Port Credit exude wisdom and spirit. These positive attributes are omnipresent in their daily actions, and benefit the school immensely. What's more, their characters and personalities are truly diverse.

Our teachers dedicate their lives to their love of teaching students. Their passion for educating the youth is unprecedented. Although students sometimes erect a wall between themselves and the staff because it appears "cool," the wall is quick to disappear at our school, for the staff of Port Credit can be as humourous and wild as the student body. Our teachers are special because they do not act as superiors, rather they interact with students as equals, which makes us feel confident and relaxed.

Reading with one of her Grade 10 English classes, Ms. Kuypers has always been one to appreciate the value of literature.

Most schools know of Port Credit for it's amazing wrestling team, but what about the forgotten sport of basketball? This year the Port Credit Senior girl's basketball team was transformed into a Varsity team to combine the strength of the juniors and seniors. With four returning players of the senior team and three from from the junior squad, this team was bound to be talented. Combined coaching talents of Mr. Penrose and Ms. Davis really helped the girls improve and play their best. The season ended with a 6-6-0 record, impressive considering they were playing at senior level instead of varsity. Although they didn't return to Ofsaa, their season was still memorable.

The senior boy's team faced a heart breaking season this year, coming up short in many of their games. Captain Wes O'Neill reflects "We have a lot of individual talent on this team, but unfortunately we just couldn't work together". Their season ended with a 1-10-0 record.

The junior boy's basketball team also faced some difficulties this season. As a result, their season ended with a 2-9-0 record. The team remained focused and undeterred despite their record and practiced diligently everyday, occassionally with lunch meetings as well.
A big thank you is owed to the coaches of Port Credit basketball, as well to the players and dedicated fans.

Jasonn Hannibal, Port Credit's 6 ft 10 wonder on the senior boys basketball team.

SIZE DOES MATTER

Meet... Jasonn Hannibal

Port Credit's 6 ft 10 starting forward on the senior boys basketball team is more then just intimidating, he also has a mean dunk.
This past year during the winter break, Jasonn was selected to attend the Canadian National Basketball Team Camp, where individuals were picked from all over Canada to train to be the best they could be. They worked on basic techniques in order to perfect them. Jasonn was excited to be picked to attend, and pleasantly surprised when he realized he'd be up against players his own size. The camp also worked on physical strength and endurance.
Jasonn has decided he would like to, if given the chance, pursue basketball in college or university. "I just love this game, and the longer I can play, the better".
I asked Jasonn if he could have the choice of being taller or smaller, which he would choose. He decided he would love to be taller because it makes him unique. If he was average height, he would be an average guy, and who settles for average?
When asked about this year's basketball season, he simply said 'it sucked'. He, as well as captain Wes agree that that the talent is there, but the teamwork is missing. He does predict good things for next year because the team is learning what they can improve on. Jasonn hopes that next year they can bring home a trophy or banner for Port Credit, and restore lost faith in all Port Credit basketball fans.

Port Credit Senior Girls had an exciting season this year. Their wins to losses were 8 to 3. As well, they had two tournaments. The first tournament was at Earl Haig in Toronto. The girls fought hard and ended up placing third out of ten teams. The second tournament in Toronto, a beach volleyball tournament, again coming in third. Team members include: Nicole Angelow, Christine Blonski, Jackie Corlett, Courtney Devane, Jasmina Dzabija, Jacky Elfiki, Alex Fitzgerald, Krista Lamovsek, Elizabeth Morningstar, Sukmani Riyat, Amanda Sawoszczuk, Angie Sbrocchi, and Elysia Sluzar. The Team was coached by Mrs. Hash as well as Mr. Needham.

Junior Girls Volleyball had a good season, finishing along side the Seniors at 7 to 4. For several of the team members it was their first time playing, yet they still managed to come out strong with more wins than losses. The girls had a very fun season as well, with practices everyday and several skill-building scrimmages against the senior girls. The girls team consisted of: Huda Al-Imari, Melissa Clemance, Ginger Coyle, Natasha Dimitrijevic, Robin Levy, Hannah Penn, Kristen Mancini, Erica Sertic, and Robyn Williams. The team was coached by Mr. Marriott and Ms. Hashimoto.

The Junior Boys Volleyball team had an enjoyable season, although they came up short in many of their games. Their end statistics were 2 and 9, tied for 6th place with John Cabot Secondary School. The teams players were: Habib Asefi, Peter Benvenuto, Taher Davjee, Patrick Fitzgerald, Viktor Gnjatic, Alexander Howes, Nicholas Howes, Simon Piekut, Peter Radovanovic, Lukas Sluzar and Neil Wong. The team was coached by Mr. Marriott and Mr. Tutty.

To the disappointment of many students, there wasn't a Senior Boys Volleyball team this year. Unfortunately, there was no one able to coach the team. However, a co-ed team was formed with four boys and four girls, going only to tournaments. Hopefully next year a Senior Boys Volleyball squad can be established!

Senior Boys Hockey

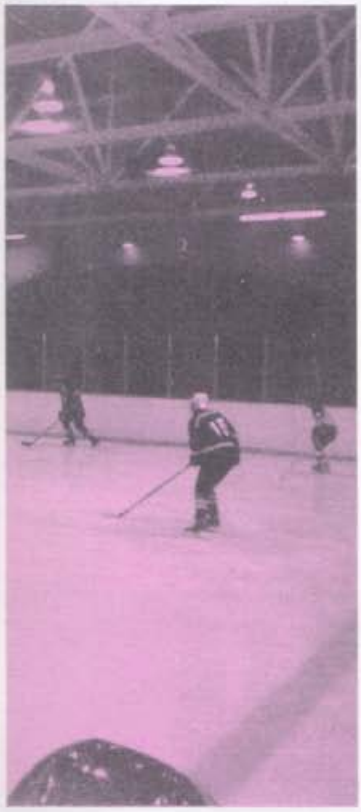
The senior boys hockey team is one of the only school teams the male sex can participate in. Without an NHL season, the boys team has been drawing more of a crowd.

When the students go to cheer on the school team, they are rarely disappointed. Whether the team wins or loses, they always put on an amazing show of warrior spirit. From checking to fist fights, the team brings the crowd a rugged hockey game. When a PC team player goes into the penalty box, Mr. Pearson's facial reaction is more then enough to keep people interested in the rest of the game.



The boys team had a solid season, despite many suspensions to team players. With Port Credit achieving a spot in the playoffs, both the team and school are hopeful. The team is also hopeful that some of the suspended players might be able to play rejoin their teammates for the playoffs. Either way the team is capable of taking home a win.

The PCSS Warriors hockey team is part of the school spirit. It is as much a part of the school as any female team, and exemplifies what a warrior is.

Varsity Girls

Field Hockey Flag Football

Mrs. Reilly, head of the math department and also head coach for the varsity field hockey team; held a two hour practice every day for the girls. The practice consisted of a mixture of drills: conditioning, stick handling, pressure drills and game simulation tactics. This year, the entire team, with the exception of four girls, were playing for the first time and, "it was necessary to work on the basics" stated Reilly. "We did not win this year because the other teams in our division have girls on their teams who have been playing for several years." She suggested that the Port Credit team has just recently been re-established and needed to learn the basics, which can be discouraging as well as tedious when playing against established teams.

Mr. Shaikh and Mrs. Reilly are aware that at the teenage level it will be difficult to get every girl to attend practice as the majority of the team members have jobs. Next year however, the coaches will be asking the girls how many practices they speculate they will be missing and that will be a strong deciding factor in choosing the team.

Field Hockey has always been a popular sport at Port Credit. Yet, this may be a problem when Mrs. Reilly decides to retire since there are, as of yet, no teachers who have the ability to teach the sport. Coach Reilly has had many years of experience with the sport and was qualified to teach it. When she attended the University of Toronto she was on the University's field hockey team that went undefeated and won the national championship and will forever be remembered as the first Ontario University to do so. "This proves that practice makes perfect and that winners do not give up, they get up," says Reilly, as she had no previous field hockey experience before her first year on the University team.

However, if the students are adamant enough, there will undoubtedly be a teacher who is willing to learn with the girls and continue teaching the sport to the best of his or her ability to keep athletics, fitness and school spirit alive at Port Credit Secondary School.

Port Credit was given the opportunity to restore a sport that has sparked the interest of many girls throughout the school; Flag football. The team was comprised of athletes ranging from grade nine to twelve, who were interested in the sport, and had a passion for competition and fitness.

The beginning of the season was bewildering for many of the players as the rules were somewhat confusing, as there was to be "no spinning, no flag guarding and no tackling" stated Coach Proctor, contradicting the rules of regular football. However, as the season progressed so did the team and the anxiety of winning their first game grew stronger and manifested the drive and determination for a win in the player's body and minds. Although, Port Credit could have been victorious in many games, it seemed as if the girls were faced with a case of "bad luck" stated player Amanda Sawoszczuk.

However, the girls should be applauded as each game they stepped onto the field with a positive attitude and played to the best of their ability. As a result of their high-spirits and determination, the team parted ways with the season, with one victory. "Our win was at home and on Port Credit soil, which made the season worth while" stated quarterback, Jacky Elfiki.

During the victorious win, the team revealed some of "the most energy and enthusiasm and the Port Credit field has seen in quite some time" expressed Elfiki.

Also, with head coaches, Mrs. Proctor for the defense, Mrs. Hashimoto for the offence; the team had a perfect mixture of talent and enthusiasm which coaches should possess, which made the Varsity Girls Flag football team possible and created memories that will last a life time in the hearts of the talented young ladies.

"When we do not win, the team still appreciates all the successful moments on the field, which is sometimes just as fulfilling as winning,"

-Mrs. Reilly.

"long distance running is the ultimate hobby and the only goal."

The crosscountry team was "up and running" early this school year as the air got chilly. The competitions were scheduled at the end of October, so they needed practice, fast! The summer holidays had just ended and everyone was feeling pretty inactive.

The team usually starts practice early, and goes for competitions a few months after that. They do a lot of long distance running, stretching, and exercising to get fit. For the members, it's not just about winning, but impoving yourself yourself for the benefit of the whole team. Most of all, it's about having fun doing what they love doing; running.

This year, the team may not have done very well in the competitions, but the work, and dedication during practise was inspiring.

The competitions were scheduled earlier compared to previous years, this may explain why the team was smaller. However, the guys turned up in larger numbers comparatively.

The team wishes to enrol more members in the future, train harder, and strengthen their weak points. They also promise to give their best perfomance yet next year.

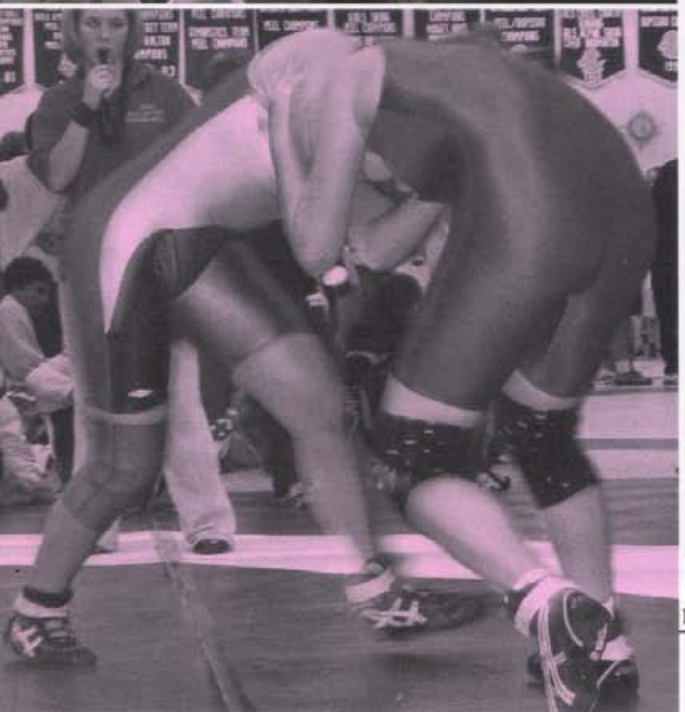
The Whole Gang. Portrait of the entire team: Mrs Boston, Dehan Sudasinghe, Andrew Hussey, Colin Soltesz, Alex Hudson, Mr. Kolenko, Megan Mckinnon, Daniella Caverson, Andre Lituinjenko, Christian Callini, Mike Cinello, Courtney Devane.

Going the distance. Ready to try their best, Andre Lituinjenko and Alex Hudson always give it their best.

We shall continue to shower on them the same support and good wishes as we have always done here at Port Credit. Both students and teachers have learned through experience that moral support is next to practice in promoting a winning spirit.

"We will continue to keep active throughout the year through various ways so as to be fully ready for the next competitions." says a team member, as everyone else nods in agreement.

Finally, the cross country team is always ready for new members. This is one sport without a restricted membership so get on your shorts and t-shirts, and head for the field after school.



PCSS Wrestling

The Port Credit Wrestling Team is a legend at Port Credit. It is the school's biggest team, and most years wins the overall team title at ROPSSA. This year, the girl's team placed second and the boy's team placed fifth.

This year, seven wrestlers went to OFSSA, which was held at Brampton Sport and Entertainment center. Goran Bjelajac wrestled in the boys 57.5 category, Sophie Mancini wrestled girls 61kg, Michael Cinello wrestled boys 54kg, Brianne Meeham wrestled girls 41kg, Neil Wong wrestled boys 47.5kg, Keith Boar placed fourth in boys 41kg, and Jennifer Nguyen placed second in girls 51kg.

Jennifer won every tournament that she wrestled this season, except for the Blue and Gold tournament, in which she came second. She was planning on wrestling girls 47.5 category at ROPSSA. The morning of ROPSSA she did not make the weight. She had to wrestle the category above (51kg), and still won that weight class. She went on to represent Port Credit at OFSSA. Most people know her as Huge Nuge. She made it to the finals at OFSSA, but she lost and came in second.

I talked with Jennifer about her four years on the Port Credit wrestling team. When Jenn was in grade nine she loved playing sports, but she didn't have a passion for the typical sports like volleyball and basketball that most girls played. When she heard that Port Credit had a wrestling team, she decided to try something new. She found wrestling to be tough at first but toward the end of the season she was beginning to love the sport. In her second year, she joined the Lakeshore Amateur Wrestling Club and started to become more successful at the sport. She placed fifth of OFSSA in her second year, and placed second in her third year.

Jenn feels that she owes most of her success to her coaches Scott Proctor, Dave Lidegestky, Ms. Proctor, and Mr. Tutty. She plans to wrestle at university next year, but will miss her wrestling family at Port Credit.

Semi Formal

Once Upon A Time

Friday February 11th 2005

Once everyone began arriving at Atlantis nightclub, it was hard to believe that S.A.C almost didn't sell enough tickets. The venue, as promised, was spectacular as well as the atmosphere of 150 dressed up and ready-to-boogy teenagers set the stage for one amazing night.

As usual, awards were handed out for best dressed couple, best dressed male and female, most outrageous, the vixen and the player. After all the votes were handed in and counted, Jackie Corlett and boyfriend Dave Jeffries won the award for best dressed couple, Navjeet Singh won best dressed female and Neil Wong won best dressed male. Most outrageously dressed went to Georgia Napthine with her light-up stilettos. The vixen award was handed to Sarah Wallace and Brent Courtney took home the player award. After everyone has their fair share of pasta, chicken, salad and dessert, it was time to hit the dance floor. This dance floor was no ordinary dance floor though, it rotated with the music! If that sounds like a recipe for disaster, don't worry as no one became motion sick.

A special thanks goes to Melissa Jovanovski and her S.A.C executives for organizing such a fabulous night. As well, much appreciation goes out to Ms. Courtin, Mrs. Semlar, Ms. Postma, Mr. Beckett, Ms. Davis and Ms. Nagpal for giving up their night to supervise the group.

We hope in future years that the attendance will increase, and those who did not come out, realize what they missed.

Making a point. Christopher Hewitt, a member of the Theatre Group explains why a microphone is located on that side of the stage.

This year, the Improvisation Team of Port Credit Secondary competed in a contest with seven other schools to be named the winning improv team. Out of the 8 schools, the PC team placed 5th.

The Improv Team was also responsible for several fundraising events for the drama council such as selling candy and chocolate to the school at lunch. They had a very successful year and were able to have themselves acknowledged in the contest.

Newly started this year, the Theatre Club was a group of students who got together every Wednesday to organize events, fundraisers, plays and master lunches for the school. The Club was headed by Julia D'Ippolito and Kristina Searle. The Theatre group has been organizing plays for elementary schools in the area. They have written, produced and directed their own plays. The Theatre group will have to find new presidents next year since the ones they have are leaving. Hopefully they will be doing the same things they have done this year.

The Improv Team prepares for a play. Will Norman, Antonio Miceli, Dave Williston, Andrei Litvenieko, and Vicram Somasundaran practice their upcoming act.

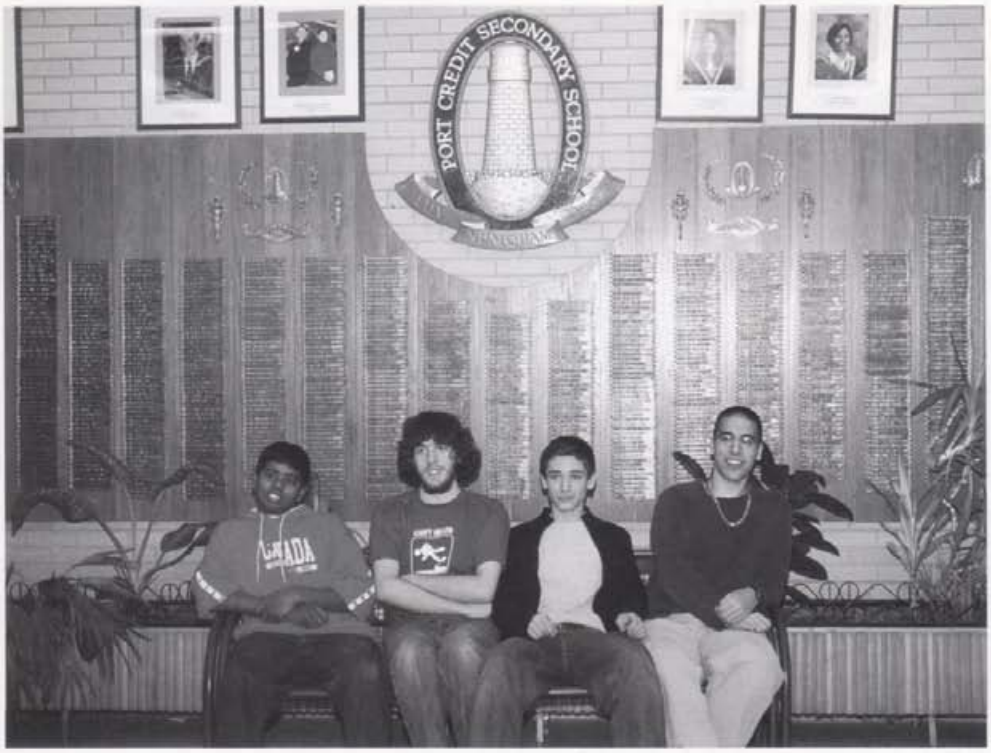
Morning Announcements

Vikram Samasundaram, Will Norman, Andrej Litvinjenko, and Antonio Miceli.



For those of us whose mornings go from very grumpy to a very sour mood and finally settle for a quick but mumbled "morning", these may be the only people who manage to get a word or two across before they start their day.

For others these people represent the stepping stone to each daily plan. Before them there can be no plans for the day and no major decisions.

For latecomers, they represent another obstacle between them and the classroom just after the anthem which indisputably comes first.

However, we all agree that they serve a purpose and that benefits us all. Their enthusiasm to serve as a medium of communication between various individuals and groups and individuals is an encouragement.

Stage Crew

The stage crew forms a small part of the school but plays one of the biggest roles. Every function held in the auditorium from assemblies to lunch time dances are made possible due to the efforts of this dedicated team.

They are part of the drama club and their duties entail setting up the props during plays.

They are also the source of encouragment for those involved in the play.

Erase this crew and we have a school full of disorganized, jumbled up functions and plays greatly lacking in terms of setting and props.

Swim Team

Swimming is one of the few extra-curricular activities that exercises the whole body from head to toe. It is also a competitive activity that one can excel at. However, it does take a great deal practice, determination, and perseverance to be the best you can be. The Port Credit team practices two to three times a week to ensure that the members remain fit and master the techniques.

For some members, it is a hobby that enrichens their entireo out-of-school experience.

Curling Team

Recently added to school athletics, the Curling team wishes to represent the success and variety of our sports at PCSS. Willing to do their best, the members of the curling team, practice twice a week, coached by Ms. Kellestine.

In time, we hope the curling team becomes more popular at Port Credit, potentially to attract new members. The girls see a bright future for the team and hope to accomplish a lot under their leadership. Since this is the first curling team at the school, they wish to build a good reputation and a winning record.

Intermediate Band

Music is a HUGE part of Port Credit S.S. Walking through our halls it is very seldom that one would not see at least one student with a guitar or some sort of instrument in hand, playing for their friends and fellow students.

For generations students have been joining Intermediate Band for a chance to emerse themselves in the art of music. Students who take this class learn a variety of different musical pieces. Though, there has been one complaint from students in the past; they want to learn more modern pieces as well as the classical ones. But should they embrace newer music or should they stick to the same old thing? Some may argue that classical music enlightens the soul, while modern music is merely classical songs that have been changed into noise. Yet the answer to the plight of the students lies in the hands of the adults.

Intermediate Band performs for the school at both the Music and Spring Concerts. They also play at Wonderland and at various other occasions at our school through out. Some of the members even went to Montreal to play this year.

Once they have chosen an instrument they can continue to enhance their skills both in and out of the class room. Spanish Club

Spanish Club is just one of many clubs that PC has to offer. Out of the over 30 clubs and teams here, these group of people from all grades come together to learn something that is relatively new to anyone who speaks the English language.

Although it may seem like a challenge, these students are up for it. Not only are they learning a new language, but they also have the opportunity to go on trips to better their knowledge and learn first hand all about the Spanish culture.

One of the trips include a jaunt downtown to the Plaza Flaminco where the students learn flaminco dancing and can eat as much as they want at the buffet that is served there. It is a well known trip that many students from the school want to go on. Tickets to the event are also availible, in a limited quantity, to some students outside of the Spanish Club. The tickets always sell out rapidly, and every year the students come back with not only new dance moves, but stories of the good time they while they were there.

Spanish class is only offered once you have reached grade 10. However, all grades are welcomed to come and join. The idea of the club is that its never too late to learn. Although here in Ontario it is required to take French until you reach Grade 9, a lot of students feel that taking Spanish will help round out their education.

Our French teachers here at Port Credit head the Spanish club, as well as actually teaching the class. They are very dedicated to what they do. Organizing Plaza Flaminco, and teaching the language are not without their challenges. Teaching something completely new to students is a vast undertaking. All of this is done in the name of education and learning!

Spanish Club not only offers students a chance to make friends with students in their grade, but also people from other grades that they would have never met had Spanish Club not existed. It brings together all of Port Credit's signature diversity.

In Class, members of the Spanish Club Lara Segan, Jasmina Dzabija, Christhian Llano Parra, Ioana Caracas, Eunice Cho, Robin Baj study hard in order to learn and become more fluent at the wonderful latin romance languange they are studying.

Martial Arts

Many see this as an art and a hobby. Well, it is an art and a hobby, but its more than that as well. It's a technique and a means of protection. It's discipline and a way of life for others.

The first feeling to grip the heart when you get into a martial arts room is serenity; a peace that surrounds and demands for one to want to belong. " I think martial arts helps you find a balance between body and mind where one learns to control how their body reacts to situations,"says Alexandra," It is very difficult to muster the technique though."

The martial arts team is seen as a sports team and many wonder why the news of their failings and winnings never reach their ears. Well, the martial arts team is a club just beginning any other club in the school and most members are just getting to learn the technique because they are new.

The club meets twice a week for practice sessions. This is just one of the many extra-curriculars that enrichens the out-of-class school experience.

This is an activity that builds a person's confidence, and strengthens not only their physical body but inner person as well, and is the perfect activity to start anyone's day off.

Mr. Johnston, who has a fourth degree black belt in karate and a third degree black belt in Aikido had a few words to say on the art of self-protection.

"Martial arts is so important in some countries that quite a number of people do it for their living," He says the club was started in 1990 and was so popular that at one time it had more than 75 members.

"We don't seek competitive ventures because I want to teach my students that its more than just competition. If they can be good first for themselves then go into competition later, my goal's been met."

"I'm just glad that at the end of four years the students go out with something more that, on a certain level, makes them better and you can see it too."

Mr. Johnston loves to instill the love of the art in all his students so that they never forget and probably continue to practice the art after high school.

Martial arts is such a broad term, but the two techniques taught in the school are karate and Aikido.

"Many people get into this thinking they'll get really good after a few classes and probably go show off their new moves. Truth is, it takes virtue, perseverance and time," he concludes, but most of all it takes practice and more practice."

Library Club

Reading is said to expand the mind, and all the library club members are aware of this truth. We can learn a vast wealth of knowledge from literature. The library club is also aware of this, and that is why they conitnue to read old and new books. From the literature, members of the club learn all the elements of life. To quote Northrop Frye; "the framework of all literature is....the loss and regaining of identity". Yet, another reason why people must identify with reading. You can experience a lifetime in a novel, and understand how difficult somethings can be. This is a reason why a library club would originate. It gives the oppertunity to students to share what they have learned, and recommend pieces of literature, that will expand the knowledge of the brain.

Enjoying the library's resources, Usman Mazahir and friend also use their time to discuss school work.

Chess and Anime Clubs

On occasion there are several clubs or teams that don't get the acknowledgement or respect in the yearbook that they deserve. Two such clubs are the Chess Club and the Anime Club. But for this journalism class preparing the yearbook we wanted this to make sure that both clubs were presented as equals and showed with respect and dignity.

From the beginning of the year both the Chess Club and Anime Club meet with a loyal and interested following. For the Chess Club they meet to play in competitive chess tournaments in which points are awarded to the winners of individual matches. This tournament lasts for the whole year, the winner is the person who has the most points at the end of the tournament.

Although the main purpose of the Chess club is obviously play chess this is not all that occurs. According to the Chess Club's Vice-president Chris Dennis the nature of the tournament means that not all participants are playing at the same time. "The topics of discussion are sometimes chess but sometimes they are more day to day topics, the weather or maybe school stuff. NO subject is off the table." But one can imagine the depth of conversation by a Vice-president who ends his e-mails to the yearbook with that famous Star Trek line, "End communication."

Now the Anime Club is much different. According to the Anime Club President one Arthur Slaughter the club is much more underground and provocative. "They like anime. Yep, they like the extremely violent and burlesque cartoons from the land of the rising sun."
"The anime club has an amazing amount of members" according to Mr. Slaughter, "the club has meetings of thirty people and often meetings with a stunning three members attending"
"Other than the leader Arthur Slaughter, the most loyal members of the Anime Club are Jason Hannibal, Luigi Proto, Christopher Chu. Though there is a distinct suspicion that Luigi only shows up to annoy Arthur.

The film Love Hina was the first oft he tow longer series that the Anime Club watched this year, FLCL will be in the middle of the year and the debate is very heated on what the final presentation of the Anime Club will be.

Under the Leadership of Mr. Johnston for the Anime Club and the skilled council of Mr. Genieve for the Chess Club both clubs are sure to have a long and prosperous future and maybe just maybe one day they will come to be as prominent as the wrestling team or the Improve team.

And with your support and encouragement and publicity of the such widespread media sources such as the morning announcements both clubs are sure to grow. In the words of a certain wise and powerful vice-president.

Anime Club is full of diverse and intelligent people, ready and willing to explore an underground and growing art form. The anime club finds an outlet in the art of anime in search of the meaning of life. Determined to ensure that humanity prospers over all things, they ensure that forms of art that are not widely viewed in the western world are made available. We all must acknowledge ther quest for surviving the art of anime.

Chess Club: full of diverse and intelligent people. Planning and plotting their next move (a chess move of course), under the direction of Mr. Geniev, they often discuss such topics as enriching their educational environment , how the sun affects the earth's atmosphere, and oceans causing those climatic changes that determine our clothing choices every day.

Environment Club

Any true romantic is aware of the fact that nature elicits far more positive emotions than a cityscape. When it comes to the beautification of the school's outdoor appearance, the group that is most responsible is the Environment club. The front tree line of the school, the small shrubs, the courtyards…all are looked after by this club, which is led by Andre Litvinjenko, and supervised by Ms. Kuypers. The club spends huge amounts of time and effort on the upkeep of the school grounds.

Throughout history, nature has been one of the dominant themes in world literature. There are many quotes to be found regarding nature. Henry David Thoreau said: "Nature will bear the closest inspection. She invites us to lay our eye level with her smallest leaf, and take an insect view of its plain." Thoreau is referring to the fact that nowadays, we often overlook the beauty of nature, and cannot be bothered to examine and find pleasure in its intricacies. Another quote by Thoreau speaks to the current view of humanity towards nature, and what we are doing that is leading to its slow destruction: "If a man walks in the woods for love of them half of each day, he is in danger of being regarded as a loafer. But if he spends his days as a speculator, shearing off those woods and making the earth bald before her time, he is deemed an industrious and enterprising citizen." The environment club belongs to the group people who intend to preserve nature, and not allow industry to poison the atmosphere any further.

The Musical Journey of a Lifetime

On Monday March 29 of 2004, myself and the rest of the Port Credit Chamber Strings, along with Mrs. Currie and Ms. Williams, returned home to resume our normal lives after our trip to Austria. We arrived at Pearson International Airport, exhausted yet refreshed and, ultimately, enriched by our experiences overseas.

As any member of the travelling group can say, our time in Austria was well-spent, and it was undoubtedly one of the most memorable experiences that any of us will ever have.

The trip began in the evening on Saturday March 20, as we flew out of Toronto aboard Austrian Airlines. We arrived at Vienna International on Sunday morning,,and were welcomed by Mrs. Currie's longtime friend Dr. Phil McConnell, as well as weather around 20 degrees Celsius (a bonus for March)! In the mid-afternoon, we checked into our hotel, which was situated near the Belvedere Palace. Everyone hoped to go to sleep early, but ended up wandering around to visit friends, knowing the next day they would feel the effects.

On Monday morning, many were feeling heavily jet-lagged, and none of us could say we slept well. Despite this, we departed for the Haydn Gymnasium, a school for students aged 10-18, which served as the site for our first workshop session with Professor Christian Dallinger from the University of Music. Professor Dallinger was an intense and demanding man, and by the end of the first workshop had us playing with much energy, despite our fatigue.

On Wednesday, we were treated to heavy rainfall. We departed for the Haydn Gymnasium for our first concert, in front of the students. This concert went well, and the students thoroughly enjoyed the performance. The afternoon concert took place at a senior residence. The evening brought even more rain, as we rushed to the Volksoper to attend a performance of Georges Bizet's timeless and acclaimed opera, Carmen. As I was intently watching the opera, I noticed several members of the class dozing off even before we reached the intermission. They would occasionally awaken during loud passages of music, but for the majority of the first act, remained sound asleep.

Friday morning, we travelled to Salzburg. The main part of the afternoon was spent on a walking tour through Salzburg, and we travelled from the new section of the city, across the Salzach River, and into the old, more famous area. The tour guide was excellent, and helped us to understand many special aspects of life in Salzburg as opposed to other parts of Austria.

Saturday evening, we headed to the Musikverein, home of the world-renowned Vienna Philharmonic, as well as the Vienna Symphony. To add to this wondrous concert, we were in the very front row, which was an extremely rare opportunity. The programme featured Truls Mork, an intense and physical cellist, who performed a romantic cello concerto. After the intermission, the orchestra performed a suite from Richard Wagner's dramatic "Ring" cycle. Being an extreme admirer of Wagner, I must mention that this opera contains some of the most gorgeous and inspired music ever written, and the orchestra was immensely enjoying this rousing score, particularly their concertmaster.

Interact Club

Interview with Sweta Patel

What does the Interact Club do?

Interact Club stands for International Action, and the club does various activities around the school to raise money for charity and international projects such as contributing to the Tsunami fund, Red Cross, World Vision, and many other charities.

What kind of events do you host/organize?

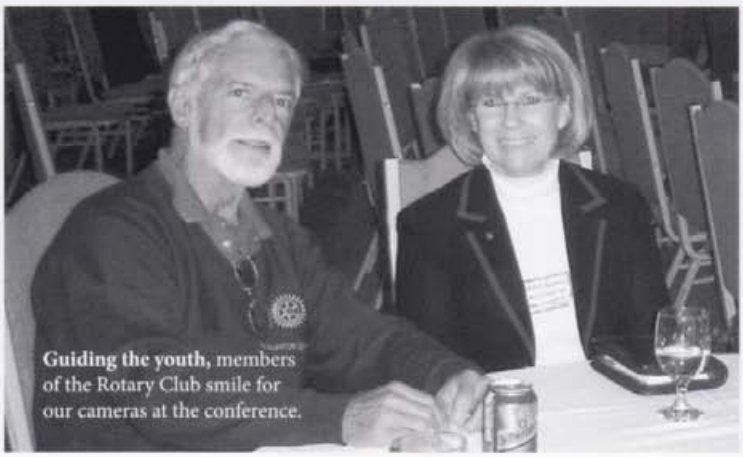
We work with the West Mississauga Rotary Club and the Lakeshore Rotary Club. Their monthly travel logs show documentaries on different countries around the world. The interact club helps park, usher, and serves refreshments during the event. We also hold bake sales, Christmas card grams, valentine teddygrams, the 30 hour famine, and the mittens and clothing drive. Additionally, we organize homework boxes in which we collect supplies to give to children in elementary schools in our community. We also send one child to summer school every year. We pay for their supplies, shelter and food. At the end of the year, all the money that was collected throughout the year is distributed and given to selected charities.

Who is in charge of the Interact Club? What do they do?

Lina Alimari and I are in charge of the club. The executive members are Robin Baj, treasurer, Eunice Cho, secretary, Saurabh Chaubal, VP, and Laura Pieke, advertising.

What are the traits you learn in the club and are they good to know for post-high school and secondary education?

This club has helped improve my communication and interpersonal skills. It has taught me the value of helping and reaching out. It has helped me make strong connections throughout the years, and contribute to things that I believe in. I've learned the importance of having a vision, goal, and a plan to succeed. This experience has made me become a stronger person, as I am not afraid to stand up for what I believe in.



Guiding the youth, members of the Rotary Club smile for our cameras at the conference.

Huddling together, Sofia Fana, Shabana Karimi, Lina Alimari, Sweta Patel, Yomna Khan, and Laura Pieke enjoying the experience at the Interact Conference.

Running and sponsoring the Interact Conference is a large job, but was well-handled by these busy humanitarians.

There are some clubs in the school that involve the completion of complicated and risky experiments, fun projects, and social conventions. Two such clubs are indeed two of the most fun-filled and demanding in the entire school: the chemistry and physics clubs.

The chemistry club, headed up by Science department head Mr. Penrose, involves experiences that teach students about chemical reactions, and bestows upon them further knowledge of science. In the past, the club has fabricated gold coins from pennies, grown crystals, and experimenting with esters.

The physics club, headed by Mr. Kolenko, performs many outdoor and indoor physics experiments, including miniature car racing, mini-rocket launchings, and optical experiments. Physics is perhaps the most physically demanding of the sciences, and all of the club members share a profound dedication to it. They want to challenge themselves, whilst having large amounts of fun.

Islamic & Math Club

The math club is one of the most solidified in the school, and has been around for many, many years. The teacher supervisor is Math department head Mrs. Reilly, and the president is also Eunice Cho. Eunice has shown much skill, passion, commitment to math over the years, and makes the ideal choice for a president this year. The other members of the club also share a love of difficult math problems, and take part in mathematics contests, which are carried out by the club's leaders. The math club has a steadfast and growing base of members, and promises to continue to be one of the best clubs that Port Credit has to offer.

Another part of Port Credit's cultural mosaic is the large number of Islamic students that attend Port Credit. Each year, the Islamic club organizes the amazing, glorious Eid party, and each Friday they attend a prayer session. The teacher supervisor of the Islamic club is Mr. Shaikh, and the president of the club is Bahroze Khan. The Eid party this year was greeted with much enthusiasm, and it is lovely to see that non-Muslims are also attending the Eid party and the Islamic club meetings.

This years Student Activity council had many successes on its back. The year was packed with fun activities that included everyone and anyone. They made stealing legal; anything from pumpkins to flowers to eggs, as well as hosting an array of dances, semi-formal and prom. There were several executives, each of which had a different role and different responsibilities among the group. Melissa Jovanoski- the Student Council President, Jacky Elfiki- the Senior Vice-President, Kelly Wallace- the Junior Vice President, K.C Chawla- the Treasurer, Jenn Nguyen- the Social Convenor, Kate Dunn- the Media Representative with William Norman as Assistant Media Representative, and Robyn Levy as the Secretary, responsible for attendance and other record-keeping duties. The execs (and the general members) were very pleased with the year they gave to the students and hope for an even better year next year!

One of the leading councils of the school along with Drama Council, Visual Arts Council, Music Council, and SAC, the Athletic Council takes great pride in flaunting the abilities of its many star athletes. The council organizes sports tournaments, fundraising activities, and the Halloween dance. The presidents of this year's council are Jane Kennedy and Amanda Sawoszczuk. They are incredibly enthusiastic, and committed to providing a good sport presence here at Port Credit. Along with their secretaries and fundraising directors, they ensure a year filled with athletic events, both friendly and competitive.

A terrific trio. Julie Manns publicity exec, Christine Blonski vice president, and Ashley McMillin fundraising exec ensure that operations run smoothly.

The younger cheifs. Robin Levy secretary and Kelly Wallace fundraising exec are highly motivated individuals and have exuded achool spirit since they entered high school.

The Art Council is a group of talented senior students who meet in Mrs. Zita's room every Thursday at lunch.

Together, they have the important task of making our hallways, and our school, look aesthetically pleasing. Do you remember seeing the Sears Festival display in the hallway? How about the semi-formal posters? Chances are you have. These are just a few examples of the art councils work.

Other councils go to these art students for any job that may involve anything artistic. This includes creating posters that advertise different events throughout the year. But the art counsil does more than just make posters. They are responsible for all the art exibitions, show cases and mureals (like the one in room 204, and the girls washroom near the gym).

Near the beginning of the school year, members of the art council volunteered their artistic talents to Mineola Public School. They helped the school fundraise money for Terry Fox day by painting designs on the young kids faces for a dollar.

The group also helped with the invitations for commencement and the Great PCSS Library Visual Arts Extravaganza, which was held on Feburary 22. April 18 to 20 is Education Week, and the art council is in charge of organizing different activities and displays. We can't wait to see what they come up with!

Drama Council

The Members of the Drama Council have an interactive role with our school community. On average Drama Council will produce six shows a year that are open to the students of Port Credit S.S.. These shows are known to Port Credit as Master Lunches and have been a part of the history of the Drama Council for the past decade.

The Drama Council also organizes various fundraisers. This past year they have raised money for the Dramatic Arts progam and managed to buy new props. The Council also does fundraising for various charities, their most recent one was chocolate sales for aids awarness.

Drama Council allows those students who love drama, but can not fit it in to their scheduals to enjoy the advantages it provides and have a blast. Drama is a way to express ones self, it is excellent for self esteem and public speaking skills.

Alison McBride, council president keeping the music alive.

Staying Focused. Dedicated members Andre Lhvinjenko, Cleone Ye, and Grace Coyle.

The music council is an active organization at Port Credit S.S. Under the direction of Ms. Currie and music council president Alison McBride, the council members gather together once a week. Although a majority of the members are music students, the council is opened to everyone.

Every monday, the dedicated participents spend the better half of their lunch in the music room. The council spends this time organizing activites such as international music day, the winter and spring concert, and various other events. A great deal of time and effort is put forth by the members to plan every detail of the events. Detail and care is also put into the process of promoting their events. The artistic members come up with slogans and event names, that they place on well designed posters often found throughout the school.

However, the music council isn't all work and no play. As a reward for all their hard work, a trip is arranged to see a play of their choice. Closer to the end of the year, the students participate in a competition at Paramount Canada's Wonderland. All members are welcome whether playing in the competition or sitting on the sidelines supporting their school.

Keep up the great work music council. Way to keep the music of our school alive!
